Dear Parents, Guardians, and Caregivers,

June is upon us and the days are getting longer, the sun is shining (most days), and the birds are chirping in full force. Hints of summer being around the corner are everywhere. So, how then do you keep children focused and motivated? Although there is no simple answer, I would like to share some tips.

Maintain a schedule- Children need consistency and routine. Staying out late can make a child overtired, irritable, and starts the school day off on the wrong foot.

Reinforce the importance of organization- Ensuring that your child has their clothes set out the night before, putting homework in the book bag and placing it in a set location will save time in the morning.

Encourage your child to do their very best- The year is not over. Sometimes, children need a reminder that they have a very important job to do at school and by celebrating their success, supporting their challenges, and communicating with the school your child will see that you value education.

Lastly, we appreciate your support as we continue to work to ensure your child grows academically, socially, and emotionally. To this end, modeling and celebrating kind behavior in words and actions is paramount to our mutual mission and goals.

Very truly yours,
Alison Salerno
Principal

Looking for fun, educational programs for your child this summer? Bethel Summer's BEST has them all!

This is the last week to register for programs online. Those wishing to register after June 1st can do so at Berry School on or after July 2nd.
